Privacy Notice to Employees

Introduction
Rheem Manufacturing Company, including its subsidiaries (hereinafter referred to as “Rheem,” “we,” “us,” and “our”) is committed to protecting the rights and privacy of individuals in accordance with the applicable privacy laws. This Privacy Notice applies to our employees, job applicants and candidates. It explains what personal information we collect and how we use it and provides additional information to comply with our obligations under privacy laws. Rheem is committed to protecting and respecting your privacy.

What Information do We Collect?
Rheem collects various types of personal information about you including information relating to your personal details, recruitment, screening results, work details, business contact information, pay and benefits, attendance and leave, training and development, performance, disciplinary and grievance and other HR management or business processes, and other information relating to the administration or management of your employment.

Applicability of Other Rheem Privacy Policies
Rheem’s website (www.rheem.com) may have separate privacy policies and terms of use that apply to their use. Additionally, some of our products and services may have separate privacy policies and terms of use that apply to their use. Any personal information regarding you collected in connection with your use of those websites or products and services are not subject to this Privacy Policy.

What is Personal Information?
Personal Information means information that identifies, relates to, describes, is capable of being associated with, or could reasonably be linked, directly or indirectly, with a particular individual.

Personal information does not include such information if it is anonymous or if it is has been rendered de-identified by removing personal identifiers.

Security
The security of your personal information in the possession of Rheem is addressed in various policies and procedures. We operate and use appropriate administrative, technical and physical security measures to protect your personal information. We have in particular taken appropriate security measures to protect personal information about you from accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorized disclosure of, or access, to personal information about you. Access is granted on a need-to-know basis to those employees and other people whose roles require them to process personal information about you.

Use of Personal Information
Rheem needs to maintain personal information about you for normal employment purposes. The information we hold will be used for management and administrative purposes only, including, but not limited to the establishment, maintenance, and termination of employment relationships. We will keep and use it to enable us to run the business and manage our relationship with you effectively, lawfully and appropriately, during the recruitment process, while you are working for us, at the time when your employment ends and after you have left. This includes information to enable us to comply with any legal requirements, pursue legitimate interests of Rheem and protect our legal position in the event of legal proceedings. If you do not provide this information, we may be unable in some circumstances to comply with our obligations and we will tell you about the implications of that decision.

The information that we hold about you is primarily information provided by you when applying for your job, but some may come from other internal and external sources. In addition, the information may be supplemented by information generated in the course of your employment.

Responsibilities - General Principles
All personal information held on behalf of Rheem, whether electronically or on paper, must be kept securely, no matter whether it is kept by an employee or on a server. Personal information must not be disclosed to any unauthorized third party by any means, accidentally or otherwise.

In addition, we monitor computer and telephone mobile telephone use, as detailed in our Acceptable Use Policy, available on the Rheem intranet.

We will only disclose information about you to third parties if we are legally obligated to do so or where we need to comply with our contractual duties, for instance we may need to pass on certain information to our external payroll provider, pension or health insurance providers.

Disclosures of Personal Information
Your personal information may be shared, including to our subsidiaries and affiliates. Basic information in our global directories may be accessible to employees across the Rheem organization.

Other information may be disclosed internally on a need to know basis to appropriate members of management, Human Resources or certain staff in other departments (e.g. finance or IT) where needed for them to perform their role.

Appropriate information may also be disclosed to third parties we work with such as our system providers, benefit providers, third party processors or professional service advisers. We may also share information with national or regulatory authorities to comply with our legal and regulatory obligations. In addition, in connection with a merger or sale of the company and/or parts of its assets, your personal information may be among the items sold or transferred.

We do not sell personal data for any commercial or marketing purposes.

Retention Policy for Personal Information
Rheem’s policy is to use the retention periods provided in the Rheem Records Management Policy and Record Retention Guidelines, as updated from time to time. Rheem will keep your personal information only as long as is necessary for the purpose(s) for which it was collected. Personal information will be securely destroyed when no longer required.

Rheem has a contract with a secure shredding vendor for the disposal of confidential information.
Your Rights and Choices
The CCPA provides consumers (California residents) with specific rights regarding their personal information. You have a right to request that Rheem disclose certain information to you about our collection and use of your personal information over the past 12 months. Only you, or someone legally authorized to act on your behalf, may make a verifiable consumer request related to your personal information. You may also make a verifiable consumer request on behalf of your minor child. This section describes your CCPA rights and explains how to exercise those rights.

You may (1) seek confirmation regarding whether Rheem is processing personal information about you; (2) request access to the personal information that we maintain about you; (3) request that we update, correct, amend or erase or restrict information about you; or (4) exercise your right to information portability, by contacting us directly at compliancemanager@rheem.com. In addition, you may object to Rheem’s processing of your personal information at any time; however, doing so may impact your use of the services that we provide. To protect your privacy, Rheem will take commercially reasonable steps to verify your identity before granting access to or making any changes to your personal information. We cannot respond to your request or provide you with personal information if we cannot verify your identity or authority to make the request and confirm the personal information relates to you.
